

Meet your next employee.

Job Corps graduates have the skills, training, and education to become your next employee. Every Job Corps student graduates with industry-recognized credentials backed by hands-on experience in the industry they trained in.

More than hands-on training

Job Corps students graduate with more than just credentials. They graduate with soft skills such as communication, teamwork, and professionalism.

Job Corps is a national career training program administered by the U.S. Department of Labor. We train and educate young people to gain the skills they need to find meaningful employment and start their careers.

Our program is free and open to eligible 16- through 24-year-olds, and graduates go on to employment, apprenticeships, higher education, or the military.

“Job Corps does a great job, not only preparing students to work well, but teaching them how to have a positive attitude and be held accountable for the work they do. Those are very important traits when it comes to looking for recruits.”

Training the employees you need

We continuously evolve and update the Job Corps training program based on the labor market so that each student's training aligns with local workforce needs. Through partnerships with Center Workforce Councils (typically made up of employers and workforce representatives), we involve area business professionals in these decisions.

While enrolled, Job Corps students learn in the classroom and in the real world through work-based learning and internships with local employers. Many complete Advanced Training or pre-apprenticeships, and others earn college credit hours through our college partnerships.

The
Line:

Job Corps graduates have the skills and training that you're looking to hire. We call that a win-win.

Beatrice A. is a certified nursing assistant at a senior assisted living facility in Virginia, thanks to her hard work and the skills and determination she gained at Job Corps. After earning her high school diploma, Beatrice wanted more opportunities for herself. She trained at Job Corps, passed the state board test for her nursing certification, and started her career.

What are you waiting for? There are Job Corps graduates in the area who may be a good fit for your team. For more information about the training we offer, or to be put in touch with a local representative, visit <https://info.joinjobcorps.com/business>.
